HOWA WILD. MOOSE SAVED TWO LIVES

Perilous Situation of Two Hunters, From Which They Were Rescued in the Nick of Time by a Badly Frightened Animal.

Moose Would Not Run.

Here homesteaders get a few boards o make doors for their log cabins, and it was here and out of these boards that Naylor and Greely made a rough boat, by means of which they carried stuff up the river to the Naylor homestead. The two men exchanged labor. One week both would work together on one homestead, and the next week on

One evening they were drifting down river in their home-made boat when by noticed a large moose ahead of the large moose ahead of th It was out in the river at least afty feet, and the water was nearly up to its sides. Its purpose was to protect itself from the flies. Off of the upper portion of its anatomy it brushed the pests with its antlers. The men kept quiet, expecting that as soon as they were detected the moose would fiee for Ramsey, and a lot of other titled folk the words.

But they were mistaken. It saw them, ed perfectly heedless of their Lady Winborne had made a charming and now came closer and closer. What bookshelves.

isn't going to make or lose anything out of it in any case, the shop was entirely

her own idea and she has superintended

in person all the arrangements in connection with it. As the daughter of a duke, the aunt of another, and the wife of one of the richest of English peers,

At the last moment the King, who has been expected, sent word that he couldn't come, but the Dowager Duchswell affair.

Bemidji, Minn., March II.

Do fa roaring cataract, and with death on the jagged rocks below seemingly imminent, two hunters on the Big Fork river were saved a few days ago by an almost miraculous interposition of Providence, in the form of a, wild moose, whose holds, and a few days ago by an almost miraculous interposition of Providence, in the form of a, wild moose, whose holds, and an arrow the major of the beat and response to the boat, and face which the surface of the boat, and face which the latter related on its hind legs. The saved a few days ago by an almost miraculous interposition of Providence, in the form of a, wild moose, whose holds, and an additional to a long night, when their livers him one a long a long, their, when their livers him one a small rope, fastened to the boat in the other, tied it along the providence of the people eventual desired one hours of the boat, and fastened one with death on the jagged rocks below seemingly imminent, two hunters on the Big Fork river were asset as the form of a, wild moose, whose himself it is the latter losing fits the river on either side. It be leads to the street of the men has a like providence in the form of a wild an an arrow the end of the boat and and with the rope that fast to the saved a few days ago by an almost and the mental arguslab while consists of a long night, when their livers him on a small rope, fastened to the boat in the other, tied it along the providence of the providence in the form of a wild an an arrow the end of the boat and are asset he daughter of the people eventual destroation of the surface of the montal to a little rosing its fast and showed it out into the river, it distincts the current carried its with an anticolous the providence of the montal strategies of the stream of the surface of the coverant of the David March of the stream of the surface of the surface of the coverant of the boat and showed it out into the river, it distincts the correct of the mental stream of the surface of the coverant of the boat of the London, March 11.

T'S quite correct to call the new establishment just opened in Dover borhood. Her ladyship lives only a little way off, at Wimborne House, in Arlington street, and though she doesn't

CONVICTION DUE TO SONG SUNG IN COMIC OPERA

Novel Plea in Behalf of a Kentuckian Under Sentence.*

JURY WENT TO THEATER

There Its Members Heard a Lyrical Satire on Alibi Defenses.

under sentence of death who imputes the blame for his conviction to a song sung in a comic opera. the first time in the history of the courts of the United States that a plea for a of the Laited States that a plea for a new trial has been based on the fact that a jury was influenced by a comic opera comedian.

The defendant was James Garfield Smith, who, with John and Edward Taylor, was indicted for the murder of William Moore, and all three of the men were given the death penalty for the crime. Motions were made for a rew trial, but the plea was overruled in the cise of the Taylors. In the pleamade in the case of Smith the reason given by his attorney was of such an extracrefiary nature that Judge L. B. Farker, who presided over the term, refused to byerrule or grant the motion, but had the attorney file a brief and took the matter under advisement. A few weeks later he decided that this novel plea had not sufficient weight to warrant a new trial—and therefore the defendant and his lawyer believe the song is really what confronts the former with the gallows was now twice as swift as it had been two minutes before. The moose knew the falls were there, and no man could have more terror for them. Two hundred feet above the falls stood a ledge of rock in the center of the river two feet above the surface of the water. They were drifting close to this ledge and were helpless. A few seconds and they were against it, the moose going up on one side of the ledge and the boat on the other. The rope that fastened the two came in contact with the ledge, and brought the moose and the boat to a standstill, each swinging toward the other till they touched.

The boat was the heavier, or at least the current had more hold on it, and gradually pulled it down, at the same time pulling the moose up toward the ledge. The moose was game. As soon

Was now twice as swift as it had been this peculiar distinction is "Red Feather," and the comedian who sang its fatal song is William J. McCarthy, who takes the part of the German baron in the play. During the progress of the trial the evenings and Sundays of the jurymen hung very heavily on their hands, and they petitioned for some recreation to be granted them. So it the fruls the part of the german baron in the play. During the progress of the trial the evenings and Sundays of the jurymen hung very heavily on their hands, and they petitioned for some recreation to be granted them. So it was customary, they were carefully guarded, refused permission to real the newspapers, and not allowed to talk to outsiders. It was decided, however, that no harm could be done by permitting them to attend the performance of "Red Feather," and so they were carefully guarded, refused permission to real the newspapers, and not allowed to talk to outsiders. It was decided, however, that no harm could be done by permitting them to attend the performance of "Red Feather," and so they were carefully guarded, refused permission to real the newspapers, and not allowed to talk to outsiders. It was decided, however, that no harm could be done by permitted, refused per

Here Is the Song.

With his comical glance fixed upon that box party—not from malice, but from habit—the comedian sang these from habit—the comedian sang these verses from the song called "They All Looked 2 Me."

I once vas charged with bigamy, too many loving pets.
The court was crowded on that day with blonds and gay brunettes.
There were some fellows in the place who worked the self-same plan;
The judge said: "Ladies, all stand up, and please pick out your man."
They all looked at me; they all looked at me;
The way they looked it made me sigh, I tried to prove 2n alibi;
They each brought kids from ten years down to three. and held on. The men did not dare move, for fear of scaring the moose off the ledge, for they knew their fate hung on the antier. The boat rocked in fearful of the falls. Night came, and what a horrible night it was. The night finally faded away into a glorious

Mr. McCarthy Explains.

T'S quite correct to call the new establishment just opened in Dover street "Lady Wimborne's Book Shop," for although her ladyship it going to make or lose anything out it in any case, the shop was entirely rown idea and she has superintended person all the arrangements in concition with it. As the daughter of a ke, the aunt of another, and the wife one of the richest of English peers, ady Wimborne naturally had no difficulty in making the opening of her than other day, an uncommonly in the other day, an uncommonly is street, and though she doesn't propose to go behind the counter for a while at any rate, she means to drop in at her shop every day or two and say on the analysis of the seventh Duke of Mariborough, and thus is aunt of the present begree of that illustrious title. Lord with it. As the daughter of a like, the aunt of another, and the wife one of the richest of English peers, and though she doesn't you have seen the piece in the news-papers about my being interested in the news-you have seen the piece in the ne W. J. McCarthy wrote from Kansas City to a friend in Syracuse: "In case you have seen the piece in the news-

The Discovery of Yellow Fever

THE discovery of yellow fever is said to date back to the first years of the discovery of America, when the disease broke out among the soldiers of Columbus in Santo Domingo. But the first authentic account is of an epidemic which occurred. were on hand. Everyone was delighted sproach. The boat kept drifting nearer study in brown. The hangings are of Domingo. But the first authentic account is of an epidemic which occurred an ax. They were now within gunshot, from floor to celling with fumed oak count is of an epidemic which occurred

there is little dcubt that the story of how a London barmaid of obscure parentage attained social the task of rendering him happy, and incidentally inence and just missed becoming a marchioness would be about as drahappy, and incidentally becoming a marchioness, the date of the wedding matic and sensational as anything in

On the Verge of Success.

no settlement upon her, as his titles constituted his chief assets, but that she would be assured of a jointure of $7,500

a year at his death. Then he wanted to know how much she was prepared to

He made the extraordinary proposition, Mrs. Sheffield's lawyer declared, that she should settle $25,000 on the Rev.

Arthur Gerard Robins, his private secretary, and $50,000 on Mr. Robin's twelve-

year-old boy. There is some mystery

here which the collapse of the case pre-ally impecunious ones are not usually solicitous about the financial future of their private secretaries. It was through

Mr. Robins that the marquis met the supposed widow and it has been plaus-

ibly suggested that the money which it

and his boy represented the commission for which he had stipulated in the event of a marriage taking place.

1111

Asked for a "Show-Down."

make settlements on his friends. Then

Noblemen-espec-

vented inquiry into.

was fixed for only eleven days later. Starting out with nothing but a pretty days were the most anxious ones of her consummate skill. As the Marchioness dence which the other sice was prepared to bring forward to sustain their allegations that she was an impostor and

It was in the summer of 1903 that this papers about my being interested in twentieth century Becky Sharp first met hanging a man by singing my song, the marquis. Less than three months "They All Looked At Me," I write to assufficed to bring him to her feet. Whatever her life had been her youthful good looks were sufficiently well pre-served to enable her to pass for a dashing and sprightly widow a good five years vounger than the forty years to which she now pleads guilty.

" " She Paid the Bills.

While the nobleman woed, the woman, for suppers and various entertainments the lawyer, "he assumed that she was a wealthy widow, and as she had been to New York he imagined that like all Americans she was overflowing with money.'

mentality in his proposal of marriage. This is what he wrote:

made with regard to her marriage, her connections, her birth and her property are a tissue of lies from beginning to end," said the counsel for the marquis, Society will hear no more Sheffield. Even the fat est of set will close their doors against her. She is remarkably clever, but bringing the breach of promise fatal mistake. It led to her play the matrimonial game for high stakes again. But if she could be in-One can well imagine that those eleven life. She had played her cards with consummate skill. As the Marchionage life it would have a great sale.

"All the statements that have been of Townshend her position would be ashe owns some 20,000 acres, is one of the marquis of the sured, and with the record in Burke's Peerage to sustain her pretensions of birth there could be little danger that the peerage. He succeeded to the title on his father's death in 1889. The birth there could be little danger that anyone would ever discover—what the marquis' lawyers declare they were prepared to prove—that her mother was a for a loan of $750,000 foreclosed, and a for a loan of $750,000 foreclosed. domestic servant and her father a receiver was appointed for his estate.

But marriages in high life usually involve monetary settlements, and the and other family heirlooms valued in marquis apparently was more eager to all at $100,000, that he might raise money all at $100,000, that he might raise money find out how much he was marrying enough to sustain his title with some than just whom he was marrying. According to the widew's counsel, it was then stated that his income was only thing like befitting dignity. It only a few days after their mutual vows $1,000-just half what the official receivbroached the cash question to his beer of his property was paid. trothed. He told her that he could make

Has Famous Ancestors.

He is a palefaced, immature-looking man, who gives no promise of ever amounting to anything, but he can these distinguished himself in the fight against the Spanish Armada; another at Cadiz; another was one of the twelve delegates sent to request Charles II to at Dettingen, Fontenoy, and Culioden; took over the command at Quebec after the death of Wolfe, and later became Viceroy of Ireland. To another ancestor belongs the distinction of having first introduced the turnip into this

His Norfolk seat, Raynham Hall, is one of the finest in the country, and was proposed should be settled on him it rejoices in an extremely well-authenticated ghost. This is the apparition of Lady Dorothy Walpole, second wife of the viscount who flourished late in the eighteenth century. Her marital life was such an unhappy one that she lost her reason, and was confined in an However that may be, the woman ob- upper story at Raynham. Her apjected to disposing of any of her money pearance is said to herald a death in that way. Even when marrying a either in the Townshend or Walpole marquis she said it was not usual to family.

With the lesson he has learned it may in stepped the marquis' solicitor with be assumed that the marquis will hence the request that she should show what securities she possessed. She demurred again, probably realizing that she could the marquises the price of which marquises. He needs a lot of money that the marquises he marquises. He needs a lot of money that the price of which marquises.

and now can closer and closes. Which guided sand proved control to book fight? It was too late to dode.

The infector trink or a region of the sale of the polar trinks of the polar trinks of the sale of the polar trinks of

among the soldiers of Columbus in Santo

The moose was game. As soon

it reached the ledge, pulled by the weight of the boat on the other side, it sprang out of the water and on the ledge, and stood firm. The boat pulled the current hour in and hour out.

The moose and the men were equally

day, but with it little hope arrived.
As if by the hand of Providence a arrived at the scene with two